

Curtis in the Daintree River

I am visiting the Daintree rainforest and I found an amazing river. Unfortunately it was a school trip and all of my original school uniform got extremely burnt when someone “mysteriously” threw it in a fire but I don’t mind because I hated those old clothes so instead I wore sport uniform. Only part of my class was with my group. It was peaceful just having about 10-15 people. I saw the water move as if it wanted to play. The water was as clear as crystal. But the quiet soon came to an end was Rowan came in with a roar saying that we were to switch locations with another group. Well it was great while it lasted. Even though that part stopped I snuck in with the other group. That place was just that wonderful. The water was nice and cool, the birds were beautiful and the other animals looked magnificent. The air is cool. It is neither hot nor cold just cool. It was recently raining but now it’s sunny. James asked me what I was doing in that group and I said I dropped my leaf on the floor. I picked up a random leaf and left.
