

James' Journey to the Daintree

I am inside the Daintree Rainforest and mysteriously, I was wearing my school uniform. I stared into the tree trunk and amazingly it looked as if there was a human hiding within.

In this rainforest, it is comfortably warm. The buttress roots coming from up from the ground could actually lift me up. The trees stood like great friendly giants. The trees were great structures for hiding from the rain.

The life of the rainforest is truly amazing well to me at the very least. There must be more to this much land, I must go and try to explore the rest of the creatures. I'll see you people after I've finished identified the insects.
